

Famiglia Pellegrini Della Seta

While the Della Seta's come from an ancient Jewish family settled in Rome since 2000 years, the Pellegrinis are an old Tuscan family, from Pitigliano and Capalbio villages, with three generations of strong tradition and experience in wine production.

Since the 2001, TerradiSeta started its adventure by purchasing the winery and adopting organic agriculture methods. In the 2008, we decided to add to our whole production the kosher certification, i.e. the suitability of a food for a Jew, using advanced technologies, especially conceived to facilitate some traditional procedures without compromising the high quality level of the wine, so typical of the Chianti Region. With the same strong combination of care, tradition and technology, we produce extra-virgin olive oil and honey. We also organize a farm holiday accommodation, wine tasting tours and every year we try to carry out new projects.

The winemaker/oenologist is called Enrico Paternoster. In addition to being a friend, he has the professional experience that led him to the top of Italian oenology. Enrico is in charge of wine cellars at the Agricultural Institute of San Michele all'Adige (IASMA, Trento), the most important Italian wine school and wine research centre, very well known all over the world. Enrico has received many awards, especially for its ability to create refined and elegant wines, particularly characteristic of the production area.

Philosophy of vinary:

In Italian Terra means both soil, land and earth, and Seta means silk, while it is also part of the family name & philosophy, which is to obtain traditional, excellent, and refined products from our unique land property.
